

Sources of information

for conscious consumers and companies that want to combat human trafficking

Compiled by IOM Austria, 2015

Information and evaluations of brands and products

Clean Clothes Campaign

The Clean Clothes Campaign reveals violations of human rights and labour law in clothing factories. It mobilizes consumers and, with their support, fights for better working and living conditions for factory workers.

<http://www.cleanclothes.at/>

Free2Work

Free2Work provides consumers with information about the connections between certain products and modern slavery. On the website consumers can see what their favourite brands are doing to combat labour exploitation and child labour.

www.free2work.org

GoodGuide

GoodGuide is an extensive source of information about health, environment and social services of products and companies. Their aim is to support consumers in making purchasing decisions that reflect their values.

<http://www.goodguide.com/>

Products of Slavery

This campaign visualizes existing data in order to demonstrate the supply chains in slavery.

<http://www.productsofslavery.org/>

Die Sicherheitsnadel ("The Safety Pin")

Die Sicherheitsnadel is a fair fashion guide that provides sustainable alternatives in the fashion world. At the moment, their work is confined to Vienna, Austria.

<https://sicherheitsnadel.org/>

Estimating your own consumption

Slavery Footprint

Through this interactive website, consumers can estimate the number of slaves working for them.

<http://slaveryfootprint.org/>

Sources for companies

Global Business Coalition Against Human Trafficking

The coalition mobilizes the private economy's power and resources in order to end trafficking in human beings.

<http://www.gbcat.org/>

Made in a Free World

An alliance of private persons, groups and companies aiming to end slavery.

<https://madeinafreeworld.com/>

Know the Chain

A source for companies to combat labour exploitation in their supply chains.

<https://www.knowthechain.org/>

Verite

Verité carries out research and develops guidelines and strategies to support supply chain accountability.

<http://www.verite.org/research/supply-chain-accountability>

Certifications

